

The Ancient Language

Backstory and Power

The ancient language was derived thousands of years ago when the first Dragonriders emerged. The riders created the language alongside the dragons to better understand one another. This common language was the first bond of humanoids and dragons, and was the first step in creating the Dragonriders. Dragons, when learning the language, took a more hardened approach to understanding the language. The dragons weaved the language with their very own flesh and spirit, so each dragon naturally learns the language as long as it is a descendant of a dragon who learned it.

Dragons, however, cannot speak any language but Draconic (except for a select few). Therefore, dragons communicated with riders through both Draconic (word of mouth) and the Ancient Language (via telepathy).

The language isn't simply words that are translated; each individual word or phrase in the Ancient Language was magically woven when it was created. To form trust between rider and dragon, every word spoken in the ancient language comes from the truth; therefore it is impossible to lie when speaking it.

Some words in the language were formed with a secondary meaning; power. A select few magical words and phrases can call upon the weave of magic and act through the speaker. However, the only way to accomplish this is to study a word and attune for it to truly comprehend its power and connection to the weave of magic.
